

What is a Hospice?

The word Hospice is derived from Latin word "Hopitium" meaning a guest house. It is a place where end-of-life care is given to patients diagnosed with terminal illness which enables them to die with dignity. It includes physical, social, psychological and spiritual care to patients and their families.

Our Mission

"To Provide holistic end-of-life care for the departing Vaishnavas and thus express our gratitude for those devotees who have pledged and devoted their life to spreading the Mission of Srila Prabhupada."

Inspiration to start the Hospice

Mother Arca-Vigraha was the first devotee to leave her body in Vrindavan and receive so much attention. Her spiritual qualities attracted many devotees to spend time with her, and her departure became paradigmatic of how to pass away in Kṛṣṇa consciousness with the support of the Vaisnavas. And she wanted other devotees to have the chance to leave their bodies in the same way, in the spiritual atmosphere of Vrndavana. At the same time, she became acutely aware of the deficiencies in the medical care there. So she wanted us to have what she called a "Back-to-Godhead Clinic."

H.H. Giriraj Swami

"Special feature of Bhaktivedanta Hospice is that it will help the patient to think of Krishna at the time of death so that they are liberated from cycle of repeated birth and death and attain their eternal, blissful, spiritual life with Krishna in spiritual abode.

By serving Krishna and even more so by serving Krishna's devotees you get greatest benefit, greater than any benefit you can imagine both material and spiritual."

H.H. Radhanath Swami Maharaj

"There is a great need in our society to offer devotees the most loving and caring Krishna Conscious atmosphere in their greatest hour of need, the time of departure from this world. These great souls have dedicated the best years of their lives in the service of Krishna, Srila Prabhupada and the vaisnavas. For this sacred purpose the Bhaktivedanta Hospice will soon be opened in Vrindaban.

We are hoping that this intimate project may unite devotees from all over the world and nourish a genuine mood of service to the devotees. I pray that sincere souls may take concern and contribute to this precious service to the vaisnavas. We at Bhaktivedanta Hospital in Mumbai are very grateful for being given responsibility for the medical services in the hospice and pray for your blessings."

Vrindavan Institute Of Palliative Care (VIPC)

VIPC is aimed at providing free hospice and palliative care to terminally ill & dying patients - the Brijwasis & Vaishnavas.

- 1. In Patient facility with eight beds to provide end-of-life care
- As far as possible, home care will be provided to the patients who are bedbound or at our in-patient facility.
